

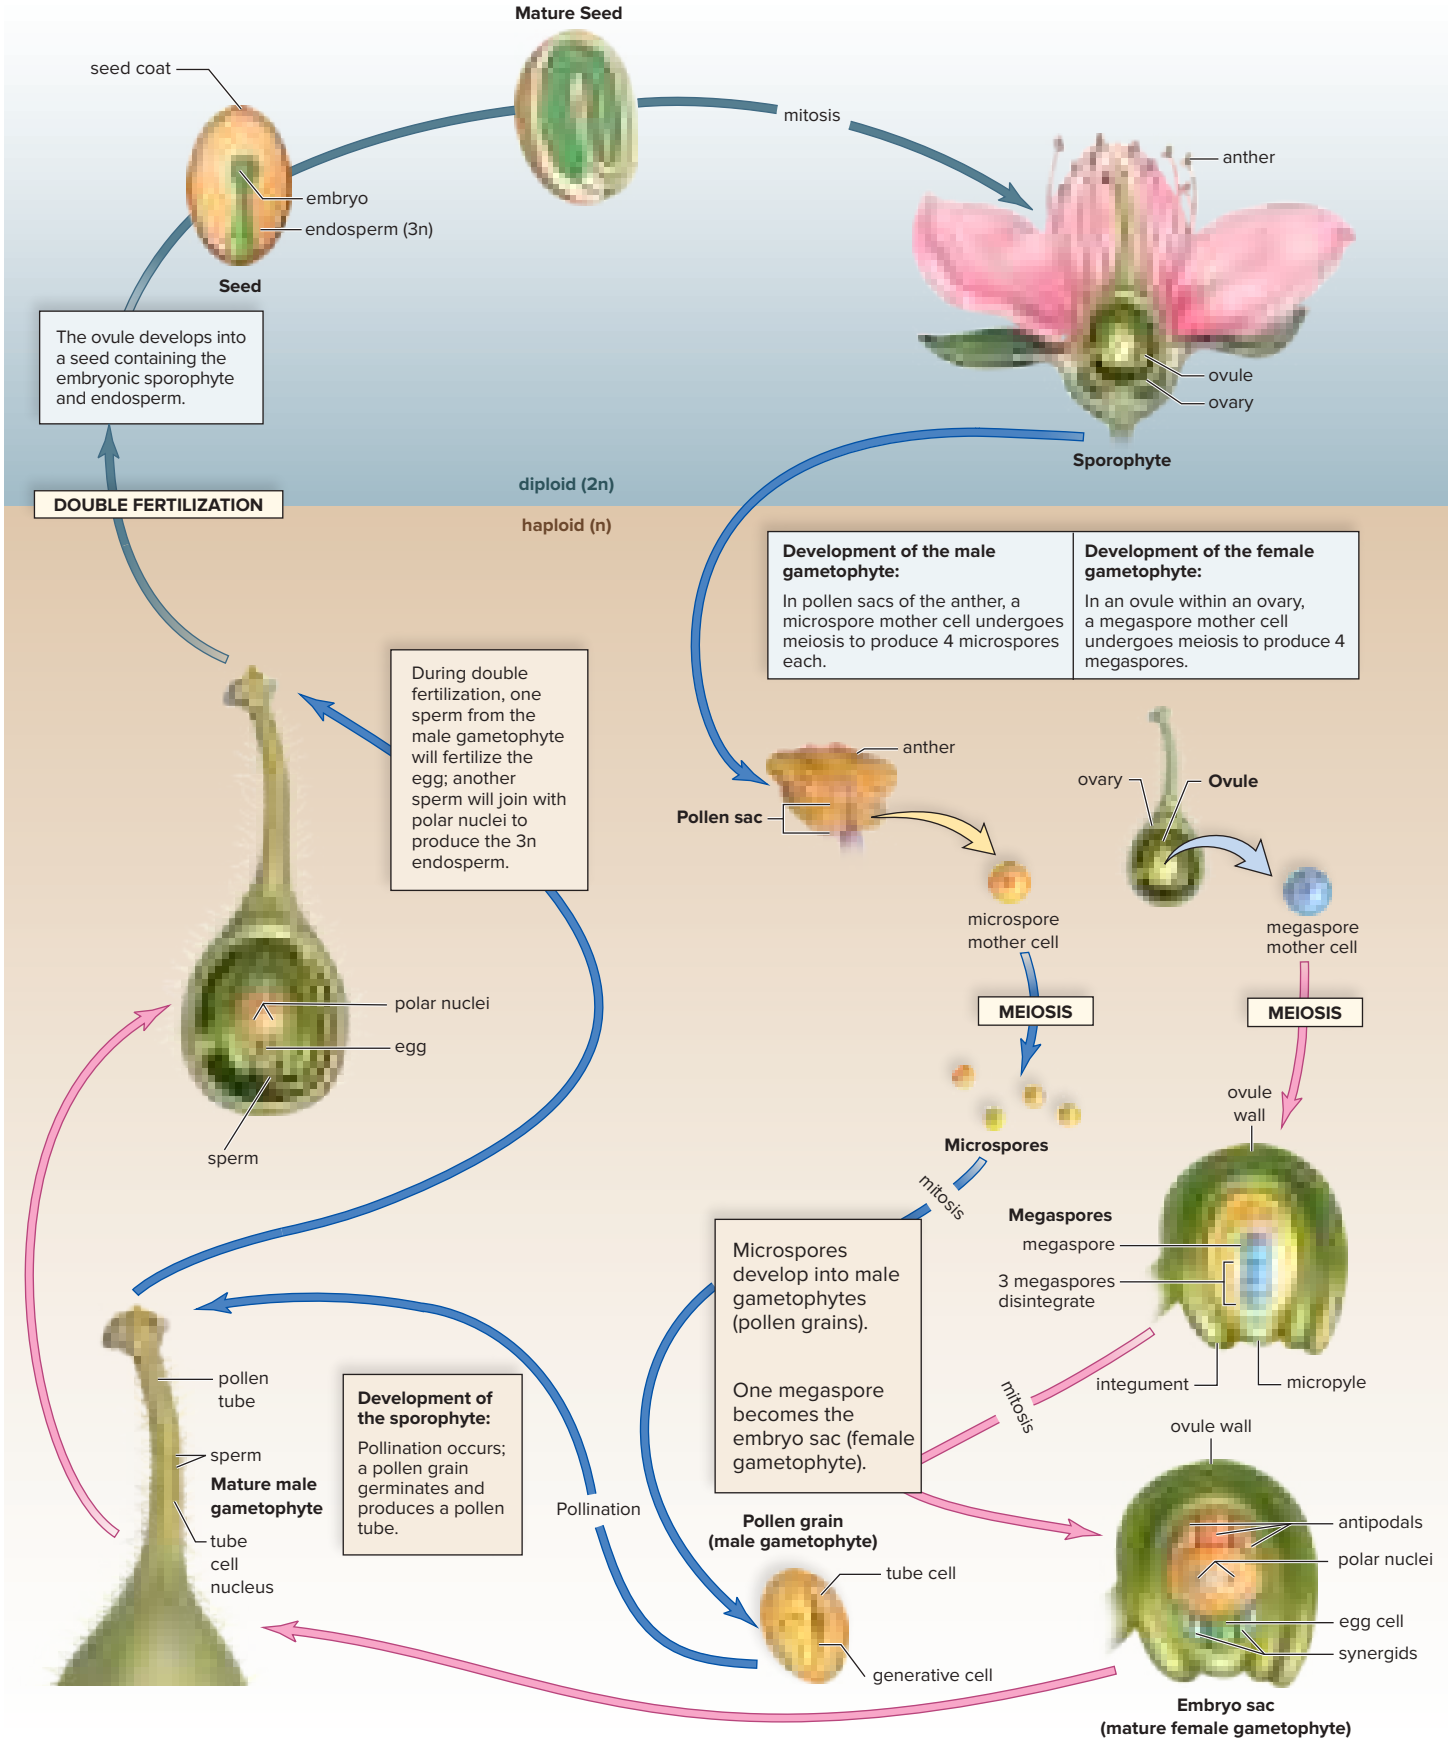

Figure 23.23 Flowering plant life cycle. The parts of the flower involved in reproduction are the stamens and the carpel. Reproduction has been divided into significant stages of female gametophyte development, male gametophyte development, and important stages of sporophyte development.

ISTUDY